Story in time order

Great Job!

Book Title: The History of the Camera

Author: Elizabeth Raum

Before there were cameras, artists painted pictures. It help us remember and learn places, people and events. Also, many of the paintings took weeks or months to finish. I heard from the artists drew their pictures in caves or big rocks when there are no papers in the world.

I wonder how <sup>they</sup> to draw a picture the first time and why did they draw it.

The camera obscura was a very early kind of camera. After the first camera came, many people invented it. Some of the looked like a wood box. Before William Henry found a way to print on paper, they were printed on metal. In the middle of the 1800s, it became very popular to open photography studios all over Europe and the United States. People who were photographed began taking camera out into the world. In 1884 George Eastman invented film on a roll because he wanted to find an easier way to take photos. We began a company called Kodak. He made a camera that was smaller and easy to use. Millions of children and adults bought it. Kodak make the camera was more popular. In 1930 the flash camera was invented, so people could take photos in dark places. By 1936 a new kind of film made color photos possible. In 1947 Edwin Land who was an America invented an instant camera. It was called a Polaroid. Minutes after the picture was snapped a photo came out of the camera.

In the lanes, astronauts wanted to take photos in space and send back them to Earth quickly. Inventors make the digital camera. It doesn't need film. It took time to make the digital camera smaller. Selling the digital cameras to the public. Now, there's one many kind of cameras around us to help. For example, CCTV helps keep us safe and X-ray helps to see broken bones. Now cameras make easy to take photos every day because mobile phones have a camera. Cameras make easy to remember the past. Also, cameras take us to places we can't go like space and under water. I real think the inventors because we can use our cameras very easily any time.
